Flies Land Near Budapest

Norman Baker (HIMSELF)

WHEATLAND—one of our neighboring towns to the north—they know what community get-to-gether means—every Wednesday evening they put on a Band concert—and it is SOME BAND—from one end of the state to the other, you could travel without finding one better—they draw prizes each concert night—the whole community turns out and they enjoy themselves—last evening I enjoyed visiting with them—a tremendous crowd—larger than their July fourth group—Mr. Lenker and I thoroughly appreciated the time given for our talks—And for the loyal, courteous reception—a town with that fairmindedness, loyalty and joining hands solidly in community affairs will always prosper—it seems that Hoover may lose IOWA on account of his Radio commission's dominating, unfair tactics—his name, I find always brings applause against him when it is mentioned—he better investigate before it's too late. Nearly 4000 greeted us—it was wonderful—the largest meeting of the year.

THRESHING—is over in many places—farmers seem pleased with the crop—the fields with their dotted piles of light brown, look beautiful—what will the farmer do with all the extra crop—with millions of bushels of wheat held over, an abundance now will not act favorably in raising prices—however it cannot go much lower—if the farmers would get into one organization, stay there—work together—they could kick out the useless farm board, arrange district storage for their grain—secure government loans up to possibly 75 percent of the stored grain value—while waiting for prices to advance—IT'S WORTH THINKING ABOUT FARMERS—stop long enough to study which organization does YOU THE MOST GOOD.

PRESTON—next Sunday an all day picnic of the entire surrounding community will be held—thousands are expected—a beautiful park—an excellent territory—all are invited—bring your lunch baskets—go visit with these fine folks and really enjoy a sure-fire community get-together spirit—they will show you how to do it—I look forward with much pleasure to this date—speaking in the afternoon about 2.

SAVE MONEY—it may mean your freedom—Attila Andreucci of Montevideo for some reason murdered a person—he went to prison for it—he received only scant pay as prisoners do—he saved $5000 in prison, educated his daughter—in recognition of this and his good record—he was pardoned at 49 years of age. Reward comes when one least expects it—it is the UNEXPECTED pleasures that are really pleasant.

MOTHERS—there will soon appear in our columns the story from the lips of Mrs. Dickinson of Evanston, Ill.—heed her—protect your kiddies—when you choose a doctor, say Dr. Starr White, M. D., "select one who does not use serum and vaccines for they are undermining the health of the nation." The thinkers know that, only the easy-lead, believe in them.

THE END—of the deplorable condition in the world is near—it will mean more fights—more wars—more uprisings—the public is not going to be brow-beaten forever—there is a limit to all things—they will realize that their salvation does not rest in the hands of a few men who were selected for the political race on account of popularity—popularity and brains are NOT ALWAYS PAIRS—they go single sometimes instead of piling together—the men UNSUNG—whose names are rarely if ever heard in public—are the boys who know business methods—handling the government is a big business—if you owned it you would look the world over for a boss—we select ours by believing what a WALL STREET PRESS tells us about them—how many public officials in high office could pass a rigid executive examination.

BREACH WIDENS IN ITALIAN ROW

Pope Reads Fascist Letter Denouncing Catholic Club

ROME—(INS)—The breach between the Italian government and the Vatican widened today as the Pope and his advisers read the suppression of the Catholic club, "Concerning Catholic Action" issued Wednesday night by the directors of the fascist party.
After a four-hour meeting at the Palazzo Venezia, the directorate not only gave out a statement denouncing the Pope's recent attack on fascism, but declared that since the suppression of the Catholic clubs many thousands of young Catholics had entered the fascist ranks.
The directorate also announced an early mobilization of the fascist forces on the field of the Battle of Piave in northern Italy to show their efficiency as a fighting unit.
The answer to the Pope's encyclical said that the charges against fascism made in it were "lies." The increased bitterness between the church and state may result in the breaking of the Lateran Accord whereby the "Roman Question" was supposed to have been settled.

TWO ROBBERS ARE CONVICTED

Two St. Louis Gunmen Are Found Guilty Of Burglary

The verdict of guilty was returned by a jury in the west side criminal court late yesterday after less than an hour's deliberation.
The trio was captured by Denver police while attempting to open the safes in a department store here May 10. In an attempt to "shoot it out" with police, Bostlemann was seriously wounded, as was Lawrence Goldberg, an employee of the store.

BOYLE, SHETLER, M'MAHON NAMED TRUSTEE BOARD

To Manage Drainage District Affairs; 40 Votes Cast

Scott McMahon and Milton Boyle, each with 38 votes, and Ray Shetler, with 39 votes, were elected Wednesday at the special election held in Goshen township to serve as a board of trustees in the management of the affairs of drainage district No. 1, including both Goshen and Wapinta townships.
C. L. McIntire and E. J. Hawker each received one vote for the trusteeship. Forty votes in all were cast at the election which was held at the Nellie M. Forsythe farm. One spoiled ballot was reported.
The votes are to be canvassed next Monday by the county board of supervisors, acting as the ex-officio board of canvassers. Following the filing of bonds by the newly elected trustees, they will have full charge of the operation of the drainage district. Records of the district, however, will be kept at the office of County Auditor Kenneth Coder.
The election of a board of trustees to manage the district followed the filing some time ago by property owners of the district of a suit for an injunction to restrain the board of supervisors from carrying out a program for widening, deepening, cleaning out and extending the drainage ditch through the two townships.
Judge A. P. Barker later filed an opinion in which he ruled that the board of supervisors acted with full jurisdiction in commencing the proceedings for repairing the ditch. A series of actions developed when the board authorized the improvement program. Three of the large property owners of the district objected to the value fixed on their property, which was taken over for the improvement project, and the case was brought to court. The defendants, gave the property owners a limited time to file their objections and set forth their claims.
The property owners later petitioned the court to set aside the election to determine if the district would in the future be managed by a board of three directors. The election was authorized later by the board.

CITY DELUGED BY WATER BUGS

Mayor Orders Street Lights Turned Off For Relief

Swarms of water bugs or Mormon flies as they are sometimes termed, infested the business section of Muscatine Wednesday night with such volume that it was necessary to shut off the entire boulevard lighting system as a means of relief.
On an order obtained from the mayor, J. E. Tuttle, superintendent of the municipal light plant, turned off the boulevard lights at 9 o'clock. It is probable that the same order will be carried out tonight and on other occasions when the presence of the bugs makes the action necessary. Water bugs, which are common in the city, were also turned off to distract the attention of the bugs.
Old residents of the city declared that the volume of bugs during the past two nights, has been the worst in their recollection. The bugs, which are hatched on the river, live only during the night and their removal from the streets causes additional work for the street department each day.

PLANS TO FIGHT OLD DEBT LAWS

Head of Vigilance Is Free After 20 Days in Jail

CHICAGO—(INS)—Declaring that he would fight the old debtors law, which would make persons to be imprisoned for failure to pay debts and a "warrant" for his arrest, the head of the vigilance association, today was free after spending 20 days in the county jail.
Yarrow was released after he had spent the time in default of a $5,000 judgment secured against him for malicious prosecution. While he was a prisoner, Walter Shaver, a book store owner, who had obtained the judgment, paid 50 cents a day for the crusader's board.
Shaver received the judgment after Yarrow had had him prosecuted for selling obscene literature. Shaver showed that Yarrow had ordered a book and when it was delivered he had Shaver arrested. This, Shaver said, forced his book store into bankruptcy.
The minister was released on a $5,000 appeal bond filed by Frank Comer, a friend of Yarrow for 30 years.
On his release, Yarrow praised the treatment he had received and said his only suffering had been "mental." He said that the other 18 debtors prisoners gave him a vote of thanks for his spiritual aid when he left jail.

Illinois Miners' Convention Expect To Adjourn By Friday

BELLEVILLE, Ill.—(INS)—As a means of keeping the organization intact until a permanent reorganization can take place, delegates to the convention of the "rank and file" twelfth district, United Mine Workers of America, today had decided not to adjourn sin die.
Although the delegates expect to complete all the scheduled work before the convention by late Friday and return to their homes the convention organization will remain as it is in order that it might reconvene within short notice to clear up any difficulty that may arise.
The delegates, whom the convention leaders claim represent approximately 71 percent of the union miners of Illinois, are rushing to complete the revision of the constitution by late today or Friday. Following this convention, the delegates expect to call a special election which will be held within three months to elect permanent officers to conduct the affairs of the "reorganized" twelfth district.
The new constitution follows in the main the principles of the constitution of the district 12, U. M. W. of A. However, there are a few important changes that will affect the conduct of officials.
Under the revised constitution, after serving one year, a district officer cannot run for any other district office whatever, nor can he succeed himself. Before a district official can become a candidate for the second time he must return to the mines after his term expires and work for the duration of one term at some "practical work" in or around a mine.

Europe's Grave Economic Plight Will Be Discussed At Conference In London

Secretary of State Stimson Plans to Attend Parley

BERLIN—Germany's banks, which were closed by the government two days ago to avert a panic, reopened as usual at 9 a. m. today.
Police were on guard at all the Berlin banks, but their presence was hardly necessary. Business went forward as if nothing untoward had happened to threaten the credit of Germany.
By OTTO D. TOLICHIUS
LONDON—(INS)—With a thorough discussion of the entire debt and reparations problem by all the nations concerned in prospect, an extraordinary meeting of ministers will be held in London on Monday evening, it was officially announced today.
Invitations have been extended to the governments of the United States, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium to participate in the conference, which is expected to supersede the projected conference of economic experts which was to have assembled shortly to discuss the Young plan.
Stimson To Attend
United States Secretary of state Henry L. Stimson, who is now in Paris, is expected to attend the conference on behalf of his government. Chancellor Heinrich Brüning and foreign minister Dr. Julius Curtius are expected to attend for Germany, while hopes are held out that premier Pierre Laval and foreign minister Aristide Briand will come on behalf of France.
In order to prepare for the meeting, which in view of the grave economic situation prevailing in Germany will probably be a conference of outstanding importance, the government announced this afternoon that sometime minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and foreign secretary Arthur Henderson had cancelled their projected visit to Berlin over the weekend.

BEER RUNNERS ARE IN 'BAD'

Five Gangsters Are Sought on Charge Of Conspiracy

CHICAGO—(INS)—E. M. "Ted" Newberry, North Side gang chief, four other Chicago beer runners today were named in a removal warrant for their arrest for their trial on conspiracy charges with 17 others in Peoria, Ill., in connection with operation of a 2,500 gallon still.
Newberry was said to have obtained his alcohol from this huge plant which was located on the Jankeheers farm in Carbon Cliff, near Rock Island, Ill. Government agents recently swooped down and found the still in operation.
The arrest warrant of Newberry, ordered by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, is the first brush for the North Side racketeer has had with government authorities on a liquor charge.
The Rock Island plant closely links the Illinois liquor traffic with Iowa. Four of those named with Newberry, Paul and Gabriel Cinquino and Anthony and Johnnie Corsetto were also recently indicted in another sweeping case which involved Mike Blumberg, "Alky" king of Clinton, Ia.

MOTORIST RUNS OVER OFFICER

Park Custodian's Leg Broken in Battle With Driver

BOONE, Ia.—(INS)—County officers are seeking the man who Wednesday night backed his car over Carl F. Henning, custodian of the Ledges State park here, causing Henning to suffer a broken leg, dislocated shoulder and possible head injuries.
Henning discovered the man on a park table with a nude girl, and accosted them to ask their names, he said. They fled, the man indignantly murmuring the name of Henry Coe or Cole, saying he was from Ames, according to Henning.
Starting their car, which bore a Polk county license plate, said Henning, the man backed over him, and left him helpless.
CHICAGO—(INS)—Gladys Crawford, 28, of Peoria, Ill., alleged "queen" of the Corey gang of bank robbers, today faced two terms of 18 months each in jail.
The pretty "queen" was found guilty of altering two government bonds in the federal court of Judge John P. Barnes.
Even the testimony of her sweetheart, Glenn Nichols, that he had forged her name on the bonds, could not gain her freedom.
Nichols now is serving a term for bank robbery. He was convicted of belonging to a gang implicated in 27 southern Illinois bank robberies.
When police arrested Nichols and the Crawford woman in Chicago, they confiscated $105,000 in stolen bonds.

OCEAN AIRMEN FALL 12 MILES SHORT OF GOAL

Aviators Forced Down At Biske After Atlantic Hop

trans-Atlantic flight in history prompted solely by patriotism ended within twelve miles of its goal this evening when Captain George Endres and Alexander Magyar were forced down at Biske, near Budapest, after a 100-hour flight from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.
The two, members of the Hungarian army reserve, risked their lives for the avowed purpose of calling the attention of the world to the alleged injustices dealt out to Hungary at the close of the world war.
Make Fast Time
Thousands of Hungarians had gathered at the Budapest air field on the banks of the Danube to welcome the airmen at the conclusion of their daring flight. The airmen had made fast time on their jump across the Atlantic and over central Europe, and keen disappointment was felt that the flight had come to an end only a few miles short of their goal.
The descent at Biske was necessitated by shortage of fuel. The landing gear of the plane "Justice for Hungary" was broken in the landing, but the fliers escaped injury.
The flight ended at 7:25 p. m. (2:25 p. m. E. D. T.), just twenty-six hours and seven minutes after the airmen took off from Harbor Grace. The airmen covered approximately 3,300 miles.
Disappointed over their failure to reach Budapest, the airmen philosophically made the best of the situation and expressed relief that the plane was not more severely damaged. They prepared to continue the journey to the capital by motor car to receive the enthusiastic accolade awaiting them.

Back Flight
The flight was backed by Emil Szaly, retired sausage manufacturer of Flint, Mich., who was among the crowd who waited at the airport throughout the day for the fliers' arrival.
The venture aroused unprecedented interest throughout Hungary, and signaled the first time in history that airmen had taken this means of focussing world attention to the alleged injustices embodied in the post-war treaties. The flight was timed to coincide with the anniversary of the treaty of Trianon, which Hungarians charge embraced an unfair division of Hungarian territory.

CHICAGO GANG FIGHTS SPREAD

Two More Hoodlums Are Shot Dead By Gangsters

CHICAGO—(INS)—The inter-gang wars which have wracked Chicago's hoodlum world for the past two weeks spread to the suburbs today when a double killing was executed in George Connor saloon and gambling house in Forest Park.
Wielding an automatic pistol and a sawed-off shotgun the killers walked into the saloon early today and mowed down Harry Davis, 55, and L. S. Murphy, alias Bernard Daily, ex-convict and racketeer. Both were Chicago police characters.
"Stick 'em up" was the command the gun crew's leader as they faced a dozen patrons who had turned up with arms upraised. The men saw the killers walk directly to Davis and Murphy.
The killers opened fire with both barrels of the shotgun, and a burst of fire from the pistol.
Murphy and Davis fell, fatally wounded.
The rest of you mugs stay where you are and keep quiet," was the terse command of the leader of the killer crew as they backed out of the door.
The two victims, riddled with bullets, were taken to hospitals. Davis refused to reveal his identity, nor would he give any information regarding the killers or their motive. He clung to the ground, and uttered "no squawking."

RESUME GIVEN OF GERMANY'S FINANCE PANIC

Country Is Sinking
Into Sea of World
Depression

EDITORS NOTE: The following resume of the grave economic situation in Germany, now focusing the attention of the entire world, was cabled to International News Service today by Otto D. Tolischus, for many years correspondent in Berlin and now stationed in London as general manager of all European News Services of I. N. S.

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
LONDON—(INS)—Germany, like a giant balloon first inflated by $4-500,000,000 in foreign loans extended for the purpose of helping lift the world to the heights of prosperity and then deflated by flight of foreign capital and domestic capital, is sinking into the sea of world depression while 60,000,000 panic-stricken people are struggling with one another and everybody else to save themselves from economic disaster, the collapsing national social envelope.

In the struggle, millions of Germans are embracing communism, fascism, socialism, militarism and other "isms" previously unheard of. Overhanging all is the spectre of anarchy, chaos, civil and even foreign war threatening to engulf all Europe.

The most serious aspect of all is the resignation of desperation. On my recent frequent visits to Berlin and other German cities I found the man in the street contemplating the prospect that Bolshevism and even the war theory would be better than conditions today.

Fishermen Fish for Big Fish In Latest Local Fish Story

Here's another fish story.

It may not be the hot weather, but from Nichols and that portion of the county where the Western railroad bridge crosses the Cedar River comes the story of a mammoth cat fish which has foiled all efforts of fishermen to effect his capture. In a hole some 25 feet deep, near the railroad bridge, and where the current of the river is the swiftest, the piscatorial specimen makes its home. The hole is strewn with boulders, so the story goes, and behind these the fish reposes while it laughs at puny man's efforts to land it in the frying pan.

Some few fortunates have been able to secure a glimpse of the giant. A flash of the long, sleek body as it raises to the surface of the water; a twist and wiggle and the fish is gone again.

According to reports reaching Muscatine the town of Nichols has turned out almost en masse in its efforts to land the big fellow. Fishermen from various points in Iowa have tried their hands and luck but the fish still reposes in its watery home.

Various methods have been attempted in an effort to haul the fish to the bank. Men have dived for him and secured a glimpse of the empty-handed, one with a badly scratched arm and another with wounds on his leg. It is whispered that nets have been employed, but although the fish has been ensnared, when hopeful disciples of Isaac Walton, drew the net to the surface all their efforts resulted only in a neatly clipped hole in the net. Stories as to the fish's size have gained wide circulation and more than likely Mr. Cat's dimensions increased with the telling. The rumor reaching Muscatine today was that the fish was "as large as a man," and was approximately 18 inches wide.

TWO GANGSTERS SHOT IN FIGHT

Pair Killed in Park in Teamster's Union Row

CHICAGO—(INS)—Gang warfare spread to the suburbs today when two men were shot and killed in Forest Park in what police termed another outbreak in the battle for control of the teamsters' union.

The victims were L. S. Murphy, business agent for one of the unions, and Frank Davis, 35. Both had Chicago police records.

With a dozen other patrons they were in a saloon when the gun crew stalked in with the command, "Stick 'em up!" But it wasn't robbery. Walking directly toward Murphy and Davis the killers fired with a sub-machine gun and an automatic pistol and the two dropped in their tracks, although neither was killed outright.

There was no pursuit, those in the saloon heeding the warning to "stay where you are and keep your traps shut!"

Edward McFadden, Jr., was seized by police for questioning as he sped away after dumping Davis on hospital steps.

THREE ALLEGED BANDITS CAUGHT

Two of Robbers of Illinois Bank Are Wounded

NEWARK, Ill.—(INS)—Three alleged bank robbers were in custody here Wednesday, captured by Newark vigilantes shortly after the First State bank of Millington, Ill., had been robbed of $1,300.

The vigilantes, warned of the robbery two miles away, fired into the speeding car of the trio as it passed through Newark. Two of the alleged bandits were wounded and their car overturned after plunging through a fence.

The prisoners were: Jerry Fitzgerald, 32; Thomas Harper, 30, seriously wounded in the back, and Jack Sullivan, 40, who suffered a scalp wound. They were taken into custody by Sheriff Martin Hextell, of York. All were from Chicago.

The bandits forced president Roy Scoggins and secretary Theodore House to lie on the bank floor while they looted the cash drawers.

When the robbers drove off in the direction of Ottawa, 20 miles away, Scoggins notified the Farmers State bank at Newark, on the Ottawa road.

Thor Vogen and Dr. F. C. Heninger, volunteer guards at Newark stationed themselves alongside the road and when the car passed through, they ordered it to stop. Instead, the driver drove faster. The vigilantes fired. At the town limits the car plunged through a fence, the driver evidently misjudging a curve.

When townsmen arrived at the scene of the accident they found the car abandoned. The three men, however, were found in a nearby field.

Holland Boy Who Closed Leak in Dike Needed Here

JOLIET, Ill.—(INS)—Holland's famous boy that stopped the leak in the dike with his hand was sorely needed today by Capt. John Anderson of Chicago who is piloting a flotilla of ten tug boats on the way to the Gulf of Mexico through the old Illinois-Michigan canal. The first is stranded at Channahon, six miles south of here, where a break in the canal wall lowered the water so the boats could not make progress. Repairs are expected by Saturday.

Finds Ancient Walls Of Biblical Jericho

LONDON—(INS)—The great royal palace of Jericho, razed to the ground when Joshua and the Israelites burned the city 3,400 years ago, has been located by Professor Garstang, and the members of the British Marston Archaeological Expedition.

Professor Garstang, who has arrived in London from Palestine, asserts that the "discovery of the necropolis of Jericho is one of the most important of recent excavations in Palestine."

"There are at least 2,000 unopened tombs on this site," the Professor added. "One tomb alone has yielded 600 pieces of pottery, 250 of which are vases in excellent preservation."

After the present schedules are completed St. John's College of Brooklyn will have only basketball and track as major sports. Buck Freeman will become athletic director January 1, when Raymond F. Lynch resigns.

Colleges Must Solve Problem of How to Make Living, Noted Educator Declares in Speech

BOULDER, Colo.—(INS)—Tax-supported state universities, to fulfill their obligations to the state, must not only teach the student and encourage the scholar in fields of research, but must reach out beyond the campus and become a real factor in adult education, Dean Elmore Petersen of the extension division of the University of Colorado told members of the National University Extension Association when he welcomed them to the sixteenth annual convention here.

The three problems of the adult citizen which the university extension divisions must help solve, Dean Petersen told the 70 representatives of the 42 member institutions, are the problem of making a living, the problem of living together with others, and the problem of living with oneself. These, he said, are "fundamental and inseparable problems."

"One should speak cautiously when he suggests that the university has any responsibility whatever to people in their struggle to make a living," said the Dean, who is president of the association. "But in these economically distressful times no one except those ignorantly or wilfully blind can help seeing how dreadfully important the mere making of a living is. I am convinced that many of the ill the world is suffering from are due to lack of an understanding and correct application of economic laws, forces, principles, that operate in the affairs of men."

"This conviction was strengthened by having attended the annual meeting of the national chamber of commerce, which was a great open confession, where business laid its troubles upon its own doorstep and accepted the blame. But more than that, it pointed its way out of its difficulties by means of research and education. Research to get at the actual truth about our economic structure in all of its ramifications; and then, education, because it is only by wise planning and action based on facts rather than guesses or hopes of unfounded assertions, that economic prosperity can be attained and maintained."

Democracy is on trial today as never before, Dean Petersen declared, in developing the problem of man's living together with other men. Because it requires knowledge and judgment and courage to be citizen today, as never before. He pointed out that education

GANGSTER SHOT IN GUN BATTLE

Two Women Wounded in St. Louis Warfare

St. Louis—(INS)—Gus Buselaki, 38, described by police as a gangster, was shot and killed and two women were wounded, one of them critically today by enemy gunmen, as they stood in an oil station.

The women wounded are: Miss Josephine Linder, 39, and Mrs. Marie Marcurio, 30. Miss Linder's condition is critical. She was shot nine times. Buselaki was shot twice. Seven other persons standing near the scene of the shooting escaped uninjured.

The gunmen drove into a lot on which the station is located and fired with machine guns upon their victims when they were but ten feet away from them, police said they learned. One of the assassins were in the automobile was not known. Buselaki was proprietor of the oil station.

The theory that the shooting was the result of a dispute between two ice car drivers here, was advanced by police.

Mystery of Virgin Mary Figure Upon Building Solved

CHICAGO—(INS)—Somewhere lowered a window shade last night and the miracle figure of the Virgin of Mary and Babe suddenly lost the wonder which had attracted a crowd of 100,000 persons in a 12-hour period.

The shades were drawn in the home of Peter Genna, once famous gangster living across the street, and 20,000 persons who were still watching the figure went home disillusioned.

The figure had apparently been reflected by a street light from a statue in the Genna home. One of the fantastic stories which went the rounds was that the vision was a divine tribute to Milly Sandy, 16, who is planning to become a nun. The figure, 12 feet high, was discernible on the wall of the apartment building where Miss Sandy lived.

Invents Talks to Cheer Prisoners

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal.—(INS)—A convict who had never seen a talking motion picture and who had entered San Quentin long before they were in vogue has presented his fellow inmates with nothing short of a miracle.

He is Edward Carlton, the prison photographer.

Because of him the tubercular patients in the prison hospital can now see and hear a 100 per cent talkie.

Four weeks, Carlton worked on a home-made apparatus. A makeshift speed regulator, a second-hand amplifier—a wired phonograph arrangement of his own devising. A net work of delicate wires, hours of patient manipulation to synchronize the sound with the speed of the film.

And it worked.

Carlton has added technicolor to his regular programs for the patients. Recently he showed a technicolor talkie, a musical extravaganza of the Great White Way, New York, and Paul Whitman, stage stars and dancers, Hollywood and Palm Beach, all rolled into one.

Sam Gurneau, Indian youth, won four letters in his sophomore year at North Carolina State. He starred in football, basketball, wrestling and track.

Farm Wages

There is a tendency to deplore the exodus from the farm of young men who would naturally gravitate into that rapidly diminishing group known as "farm hands." With the increase in the size of farms throughout the nation and the employment of modern methods in the operation of our "food factories," one of the most difficult problems facing the farmer has been to secure adequate and competent help.

The attraction of city life, with its shorter working hours and livelier amusements, has enticed many young men from their natural habitat to the city. Perhaps it is not altogether the bright lights and shorter working hours which are responsible.

The department of agriculture has just announced that the wage scale for hired farm hands is now at the lowest point it has been since 1916 and more nearly approaches the pre-war level than at any time in 15 years. Usually, the bulletin states, there is an advance in wages paid farm hands from April 1 to July 1 but this year the seasonal advance failed to materialize. On the contrary, wages sunk lower.

On July 1, according to the department's information, all types of farm wage payments were substantially below a year ago. Wages per day, with board, suffered the most drastic reductions, averaging 25 percent down for the country as a whole. The central states showed a 27 percent average down, the far west 25 percent, the south Atlantic division 24 percent and the north Atlantic division 19 percent.

Falling prices for farm crops is believed to be the largest factor in the dropping wage scale. This has reduced the demand for labor, the owner being forced to curtail expenses wherever possible.

The downward trend of farm wages has not, however, kept pace with the falling crop market. While wages have averaged 25 percent down, farm prices are still lower, compared with 1916, the lowest level year since the war.

Crop correspondents of the department of agriculture report that the supply of farm labor on July 1 was 111.1 percent of normal, compared to 99 percent of normal a year ago. On the other hand, the demand for farm labor was 73.4 percent of normal on the same date compared to 84.8 percent of normal last year.

City people who drive through the country in their automobiles are frequently heard to envy the "independence" of the farmer from labor disputes and other bug-a-boos which haunt the city business man. It would seem there are other troubles, to which the farmer is heir, that are just as bad.

A Wicked Racket

The three certain things in life are death, taxes and the "racket." You may avoid contact with death for many years. You can escape the payment of direct taxes, but, apparently, the "racket" is always with us. It is difficult to understand why the people continue to fall for the "racket."

The "racket" is really a multitude of "rackets" and not any single enterprise. Under the head of "rackets" may be classified all of those schemes for extracting dollars from gullible people, without giving anything in return, which are born, flourish and ultimately pass away.

Right now, the Society of American Magicians has started a campaign to rid the country of such racketeers as clairvoyants, mediums, mind-readers, palmists and just plain fortune tellers. The future-reading "racket" is said to be extracting the tidy little sum of $135,000,000 per year from the pockets of deluded people who are desirous of knowing whether their husbands (or wives) are true to them, where they misplaced the family jewels and other information which they believe can be secured by crossing the palm of some clairvoyant, medium or fortune-teller.

It is hard to believe that people in this enlightened age will spend their money in this way, but it seems that they do and lots of it.

Last winter, "horoscopes" went big throughout the country. Many radio stations, visualizing large returns, permitted Indian (?) swamis and other types of savants to use the microphone to sell their wares. It may be said to the credit of Norman Baker that no such "racketeers" were ever permitted to use the facilities of station K-TNT.

In addition to the fleecing of ignorant people, the future-telling racketeer has other charges against him. Chicago police believe the death of a woman, who leaped from a ninth story window, may be laid at the door of a fortune teller. She is said to have had a "reading" and to have been told that her son would lose his sight and her husband would desert her. Police are still trailing the monster who frightened her.

There is food for thought in the whole subject of "rackets." If the fortune-tellers, mediums, clairvoyants and others of their ilk are getting $135,000,000 per year out of the public, what must the total harvest be?

This is just one "racket." There are probably hundreds of others, many of which are "taking" the public for even larger sums. The cost to the nation of "rackets" must be staggering. Not all of the "rackets" are private affairs, either.

The Society of Magicians is determined to throw the light of publicity on the tricks of the racketeers. The society members are proud of their profession of mystifying the people but do not want to see their hoaxes used to graft an ignorant and gullible fools who believe all they see.

Medical Fallacies

FALLACIES OF THE T. B. TEST

"That our historical 'preface' hit home, and therefore is of such value that our edition of the report is worth a lot more than the bare official document," was shown by the fact that the U. S. department of agriculture at Washington tried to get the U. S. postoffice department to deprive us of the use of the mails.

The league was so poor at the time we had to put what may have seemed a high price on it for single copies, but have long supplied it at bare cost. We still have a good supply on hand. It can now be had for 10 cents postpaid—and that is under cost.

"State Medicine the Farmers' Worst Foe"

"The cattle owners have much yet to learn. Those who have demanded the abolition of the state department of agriculture evidently think it would end their troubles if a legislature acted as they wish. They are quite mistaken. If every agriculture department in the country were abolished and state medicine remained (as now) farmers would still have to test their cows. Primarily it is the American Medical association through its thousands of medical health officials which stands behind the tuberculosis test. So long as others take care of their work for them—here it is the departments of agriculture—the doctors lie low and do not show their hand; but their proxies fall down, and they have to do the job themselves, their agency in the matter is made plain enough for a blind man to discover."

"Showing How Organized Medicine Works"

"To illustrate by what actually happened a few years ago in Chicago. The farmers of northern Illinois had not yet surrendered to the testers and were voting they would surrender. An 'impulse' was reached. At once the Cook County Medical Society held a meeting and adopted resolutions demanding milk from tested cows, and pointing out the danger, especially to children, of consuming milk from tuberculous animals, declaring that the test would obviate all that. Next the health commissioner of Chicago by fiat prohibited the sale of milk from untested cows, and declared he would save babies at any cost. As inspectors under him passed upon all milk sold, he had the machinery to enforce his order. The farmers got a temporary injunction to stay his hand, but the heroic Bundesen (it was none other than the doughty Herman N.) defied the courts and said (in the papers) he would go to jail for life if necessary to save the babies of Chicago. And, although the judge in the case should have held him in contempt of court, he did nothing whatever. The lawyers behind the farmers by going nothing, though they received a total of some $200,000 in fees and for court costs, and two years later the suit was dismissed. 'Hokum' is so related by the public, and especially medical hokum, that Dr. Bundesen had his way, and he became so enamored of publicity he did a number of astonishing stunts, among them setting up or claiming to set up a human dairy; this was to consist of 'unfortunate girls' who had babies out of wedlock and were poor enough to be willing to rob their own babies by selling their milk to Herman N. Bundesen. This milk was to be sold by Bundesen to parents of babies and to hospitals for adults as well as children. The 'Chicago' press, especially the Daily News, a super-imbibed featured extensively Bundesen's Human Dairy, and later took him on as their 'health' editor, and he is there to this day.

"Farmers Must Educate their Fellows"

"The great trouble with most farmers is, they live to themselves, not realizing that the community can and is due to consult them to something they don't want, and actually force it on them. Their neighbors who do this mean no mischief, but are themselves fooled—fooled by some designing 'county agent' for instance."

The great thing for the farmers is education on this problem.

Because of the opposition to the test by farmers in Iowa recently even to the point of forcible resistance to attempts to test cattle by Federal and State veterinarians, the legal side of the problem is most important as the question arises concerning the right of a cattle owner to protect his stock even to the extent of using force if necessary. Many legal opinions have been rendered on this phase of tuberculosis testing. An important feature is whether or not the cattle concerned are intended for interstate shipment or whether they are subject to jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and consequently subject to rulings of this Commission.

This phase of the matter was brought out in recent litigation in Ohio where the decisions rendered as well as opinions expressed by the trial judge were most favorable to the farmers in protecting their herds.

In the case of Whipp et al vs United States No. 5744, Circuit Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit March 6, 1931, a ruling was made that in making the test to determine existence of communicable diseases in cattle not involved in interstate commerce the authority rests exclusively within the police power of the state.

Obstructing Justice. Rendition of service by federal officer, solely in aid of administration of a state law authorizing compulsory tuberculosis cattle tests, is not performance of a federal duty within statute denouncing interference with officer or employee of Bureau of Animal Industry Cr. Code No. 62 (18 U. S. C. No. 118).

Criminal Code No. 62 (18 U. S. C. No. 118) provides for the punishment of those who assault or interfere with any officer or employee of Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture in the execution of his duties.

Sanctity of man's home and property is such that neither compulsory investigation or destruction under police power, should be permitted, except under proper warrant, or on legal proceedings.

In this Ohio case Whipp and others indicted for conspiracy to violate Criminal Code 62 (18 U. S. C. No. 118) by assisting an officer or employee of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture in the execution of his duties.

These men were indicted upon charges to violate this above law which provides that, "whoever shall forcibly assault, resist, oppose, prevent, impede, or interfere with any officer or employee of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture in the execution of his duties" shall be punished as therein provided.

RETAIL THE HAWK IS TEMPTED

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

I'll close my ears to you today.

You and I know that this is absolutely the only thing to do. Peter Rabbit knows it, and all the other little people know it. The trouble with most of us is that we do not do what we know we ought to do. We listen to the tempters as tightly as we can. It was just that way with Redtail the Hawk. You know Redtail is very much like Reddy Fox in his tastes. He lives on much the same kind of food. And like Reddy he has a weakness for chicken. Yes sir, Redtail is quite as fond of chicken as Reddy is. He would have chicken for dinner every day if he could.

You know how often Reddy is tempted to try to get one of Farmer Brown's chickens. But Reddy's temptation is nothing compared with the temptation which Redtail the Hawk has to fight. You see if Reddy keeps away from Farmer Brown's henyard he is tempted only once in a while. But Redtail the Hawk is tempted every day. He is very hungry and cannot find enough to fill his stomach. And, then, too, he does most of his hunting after dark when the chickens are shut up.

But with Redtail the Hawk it is different, very different indeed. He hunts in the daytime and as he swings in great circles high up in the blue, blue sky his wonderful eyes see all that is going on below. And so there is hardly a day that he does not see chickens, lots of them, running about in the yards of the farms over which he flies. Of course, you understand what that means. It means that the tempter is whispering to him all the time. Now Redtail like Reddy fox, can see no reason why he could not catch a chicken when he can, just as he catches meadow mice or one of the children of Mrs. Grouse if he has a chance. A chicken is just a kind of bird to him and intended for him to eat if he is smart enough to catch one. Because the chickens are in a henyard is no reason at all to him why he should not catch one. He does not know that he is stealing. It always seems very queer to him that those two-legged creatures called men make such a fuss when he is simply obeying the law of nature by trying to get a good meal. But he has learned that it is dangerous to go near a henyard when any of the two-legged creatures are about and he knows all about that terrible gun. So, though every day he looks down and sees the chickens running about, it is only once in a while that he does not say "no" to the tempter, and then only when he has watched long enough to feel sure that he will run no risk.

For a long time Redtail had resisted the tempter. Then very early one morning as he sailed over a farmyard he saw an old hen with a dozen little white chickens right beneath him. They were very tiny chickens only a few days out of their shells. Redtail had not breakfasted yet and he was hungry. Those chickens were very, very tempting. He might have to hunt for some time before he could catch anything else. He swung around in circles his keen eyes studying all beneath him. There was no danger to be seen anywhere.

"It is safe enough," whispered the tempter.

Still Redtail hesitated. You can see that these chickens and be safely away before anybody knows you are about," whispered the tempter.

Redtail circled lower and lower. Just then the mother hen looked up and saw him. Instantly she ruffled up all her feathers and called to her babies to hurry to her. How they did scamper to get under her sheltering wings! But there was one little fellow who had wandered farther than the rest. He started as soon as his mother called, but he was too far away. Redtail closed his wings and shot down out of the sky, his great claws stretched wide. In a twinkling he had closed the great claws of one foot around that little white chicken, and his great wings were sending him up, up into the blue sky. The mother hen was making a great fuss, but Redtail just laughed, for no one appeared with a terrible gun. He would have a chicken for breakfast.

People's Pulpit

Peoples Pulpit:

As a boy I rambled and climbed and crawled around and through Wild Cat Den. Learned to swim in the pond. At different times helped to rescue two boy companions from drowning. Walked under the old log dam behind the sheet of falling water with its deafening roar. Watched the great water wheel, twenty-four to thirty feet high, as it slowly turned on its axle. So I was very glad when the State's Honorable Board of Conservation bought it and set it aside to conserve for all time.

After careful consideration and due deliberation, a comprehensive plan for its preservation and for its utilization and enjoyment was drawn up.

That carefully worked-out plan is being developed from year to year, until now, a road mostly graded and a one hundred and thirty-five foot bridge of concrete and steel is two-thirds done, a member of said Board of Conservation vetoes the road and bridge as a nuisance and stops the work.

As a result of all the freakish formations in the park, the remains of that incomplete road and bridge will ever remain the most freakish. So every visitor's most pressing questions will be concerning that greatest freak of all. Therefore:

I respectfully suggest that our Honorable Board of County Supervisors have inscribed upon the unfinished bridge, in large, permanent letters, the following inscription, to wit:

A monument to the achievement of the Honorable Board of Conservation of the State of Iowa, done by its Officer in Charge The Honorable Mrs. Mabel Volland.

Very respectfully yours,
L. A. Allbee,
Muscatine, Iowa.

"THE BUNGLER"

The more one searches for the fundamental causes of sickness the plainer it is shown that man is his own worst enemy. His own egotism has results in turning up his brain centers with his subconscious mind until he is full of short circuits, worn out wire (nerves), and relay stations.

The reason that "animals" heal themselves so nicely and care for themselves with so much energy and instinct is because they have not confused their subconscious mind with a headful of what is termed education.

There are thousands of people who are educated according to all the standards of modern living and yet they have not learned one of the greatest commandments in the whole world, "Man, know thyself."

The body is a whole world in itself and each one of us is a part of the "great plan" and can, and should be, sovereign of his or her own individual world. There will not be room in this article for a lengthy discussion but an attempt will be made to give the reader a brief, clear-cut idea of the subject which may make a wonderful change for the better in the reader's health and outlook on life.

First, let us sketch a working plan as a background for our idea. As we know, the body is composed of millions of tiny cells. These tiny cells compose the tissues which go to make up the various organs and parts of the body. Every one of these little cells is an intelligent cooperative unit when it is functioning normally. Between these little entities and the central nervous system of the body are many brain centers and nerve centers, the sympathetic nervous system and the central nervous system, and the connection between the conscious and the subconscious mind so that the subconscious mind can control or dominate the conscious mind so that it does not burden it with worries and hateful thoughts.

while the written or printed word is life.

You may be surprised to know the origin of the word "gossip." It comes from the word "God's" plus "gossip" the latter word meaning relation or relative. Therefore, a gossip was a God-relative, a god-father or a godmother, and finally an intimate companion.

Now we know why the idle and sometimes damaging chatter of intimate friends is called gossip. Has any one said that it is not necessary any longer to remind people that a pronoun should agree in number with its antecedent? Read the following sentence taken from a certain newspaper column:

"Well, anybody who's still afraid there isn't enough rain to replenish the water supply can loan us their umbrella."

"The" should be changed to "his" to agree with "anybody."

How to think, self-evident problems. The former has already his crop harvested. The latter grows it as he needs it.

The Power of Mind Over Body

By NORMAN BAKER

Your desire to talk with others on the subject and exchange views may lead you to a point where you will begin to curse others for their ignorance. But if only requires success in a test to make you fully confident. I would, therefore, advise beginners to practice making others turn round until they succeed. When in an audience church or theatre, be sure to try it.

To reach success in the use of the power of mind one thing is necessary—mastery over one's own mind. One can hardly instruct others in the mastery of themselves if one cannot master his own mind. In the same way one can't tell others how to relax unless one can accomplish his own relaxation.

Relaxation may be made a most wonderful means in accomplishing feats of the mind and in maintaining one's health.

Few persons realize that one-third of their lives is spent in bed. In that short third of a day we must replace all the nerve energy lost and all the body worn out by the work and worry of the day. Let us give that a little thought. We are supposed to replenish the human storage battery in one-half of the time it takes in running down. This seems almost contrary to the laws of nature for it takes the same amount of time and the same quantity of electricity to replenish an ordinary storage battery that were consumed in running it down. If you fail to replenish it to the same extent it runs down completely. The same thing happens if one fails to relax in sleep or otherwise and thus replenish his rundown storage batteries.

The young boy or girl you see running about, going to bed in the "wee sma" hours of the morning, thinking it smart and feeling that he or she has accomplished something, will pay dearly for this lack of rest, even though such person for a time may feel fairly good in the morning after two hours sleep. And the penalty will be greater where the person is not versed in the art of complete relaxation.

One does not have to go to bed or to sleep in order to rest. Complete rest may be secured through complete relaxation. On the other hand, simply reclining in an easy position does not necessarily bring rest. It is easy to pick out nervous persons or persons on the verge of nervous collapse by their condition of nervous tension which shows plainly in their faces. If you watch such persons in daily work like sewing, where they sit still or in reading or conversing, or where engaged in any task that does not require "set" muscular action, you will notice that all their muscles are in a state of tension. You may be sure that such persons do not know the value of relaxation.

One of the best pictures of relaxation is formed when a person who is almost completely exhausted from muscular exertion and is worn out mentally, complains of being tired and sits down in a nice, comfortable chair to rest. Such a person almost drops into the chair. His arms fall limply as though they were inert. His body falls back against the cushion and rolls to one side. That is a picture of relaxation.

Here is a good way to test complete relaxation in yourself. While sitting take one hand in the other and raise it in the air about eighteen inches; then let it fall. If you are in the habitual condition of the average person, even though you seem to be sitting in a perfectly relaxed and comfortable position, your hand will fall in your lap instead of dropping straight down as though it were a dead weight under the complete control of gravity. It will not be pushed unconsciously toward the lap to save it from a fall because if relaxation is complete there will be nothing in the world to resist it.

No Inquest to Be Held in Drowning Of Iowa Boy, 18

DES MOINES — (INS) — Polk county coroner George Carpenter today announced that no inquest will be held into the death of Harold Thayer, 18, who was drowned yesterday in Stivers lake, a short distance north of here. Thayer had been swimming there with two companions yesterday afternoon. When his companions were ready to leave they were unable to find Thayer. The body was recovered by deputy sheriffs and life guards after several hours of searching.

Car Registrations In Iowa Decrease

DES MOINES — (INS) — There were 25,310 fewer automobiles registered in Iowa during the first six months of 1937 than during the corresponding period of 1936, according to figures released today by the state motor vehicle department. Automobiles registered during the period this year total 645,390, as compared with 670,700 last year. Truck registrations, however, showed a gain of 1,177. There were 74,550 trucks registered during the first six months of 1937, compared to 67,373 during that period of 1936. The total registration of cars, trucks, motorcycles and trailers for the first six months of this year is 723,605. It cost Al Singer $15,000 for the privilege of managing himself. He paid his former manager that amount for his release.

Hat-Belts With Buckles Give Tone To Straws

By ALICE LANGELEIER

PARIS — (INS) — Has your hat got its belt? If it hasn't, it ought to have, for the belt is everywhere, on one's coat, frock and even on the hat.

The hat-belt, in fact, is the newest crink in trimming, in colored or even patent leather, these narrow bands are finished with smart buckles and fastenings, making an excellent finish to a plain straw bonnet.

For the sport hat, it is a sporting looking affair, with buckle in bone, wood or metal. For the dressier hat, it comes in strass or set in semi-precious stones.

Back to the '60's is the slogan of the chic modistes these days, producing quaint little hats tilted forward and on side, very often trimmed with a long feather curling about one's ear.

A small hat from Leon's is a charming example of the new-millennary, with the straight prim brim turned up both at the sides and at the back, allowing only a portion of it in front to give shade and softness to the eyes.

Another one in black felt has a pad of black, white and green ostrich cur covering the hair at the upper side. This means that Madame's fair brow is suffering partial eclipse, while most of the hair on one side is exposed, which seems to be the prediction for the not-so-very-distant future.

Already there seems to be a slight reaction against brows by many of the milliners, and it would not be strange to find that next year at this time, we have gone to the other extreme, with women wearing the hat tilted over their noses and their back hair (long or short) exposed.

Queen Esthers Have Picnic at Island

Eighteen members of the Queen Esther circle of the First Methodist church motored to Credit Island near Davenport Wednesday evening where they enjoyed a picnic supper. They afterwards attended a show at Davenport.

"Muvver, I want a dog. Big dog like Marfa's."

"But, darling, we can't afford to buy a police dog like the one Marfa has. Wouldn't you like to have one of Johnny's little puppies? His mother told me you could have one of them."

Big tears welled up in 4-year-old Betty's eyes. Her lips puckered, she was all ready to cry. At that moment there was a peculiar scratching on the screen of the front door. Betty went trotting after her mother to see what it was all about, her grief of a moment before completely forgotten.

"Muvver, it's Marfa's doggie!" "No, dear, not Marfa's, but one just as big. This is a collie. And the poor thing is hurt."

The dog was whining and holding up a front paw. Adelaide took the paw in her hand and found a huge thorn almost buried in the flesh of the paw. As she gently pulled it out and then coaxed the dog into the house to put some disinfectant on the sore spot. Mutely as best he could, the dog tried to thank her by nuzzling the back of her hand.

"Muvver, can I give him some milk?" "Yes, dear."

Adelaide Wilson and her tiny daughter lived in an attractive cottage on the outskirts of the city. Betty's father had died when Betty was but a baby, leaving the young mother to get along as best she could. And she had been and under-taking bills had taken almost all the insurance money. So Adelaide had hired a woman to take care of Betty during the day and gone back to teaching school.

For several weeks Betty had been wanting a dog like the one her little playmate, Marfa, had. And now she had one she liked just as well. But Adelaide was sure the owners would be advertising for it before long.

Late in the afternoon of the next day...

B. Y. P. U. Enjoy Picnic Supper

There were 40 young people of the First Baptist church attended the B. Y. P. U. picnic Wednesday evening at Kincaid Hollow. A picnic supper was enjoyed followed by a baseball game, contests of all kinds and a treasure hunt. A feature of the evening was a sack-race contest. When the sacks were opened gifts for Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Petersen, who were recently married, were found.

My Gyp!

"I'll give you to you, Betty, if you and your mother will let me come and see him quite often," the doctor told her.

"Thank the nice man, dear!" the mother ordered.

Bridge-Auction and Contract

By the Authority MILTON C. WORK

With the above hand the Auction Bridge bidding would be: South one No Trump followed by three passes. The Contract Bridge bidding would be: South two No Trumps and North three.

Whether Declarer would make game might depend upon the initial lead. West has two four-card suits, the Clubs much stronger than the Spades—a reason for selecting the Clubs although with even or practically even strength, preference should be given to a major. In this case if the Spades should be led, East would win the first trick with the King and return the suit, taking out North's Ace. After that, North without an entry, could not establish and run his Diamonds; and consequently Declarer would be restricted to two Spades, two Hearts, one Diamond and two or three Clubs—the latter depending upon where the Club lead came from.

However, when the hand was played in a Duplicate game, only one or two tables selected the Spade lead. At most of the tables the stronger Club suit was chosen and that lead being up to the closed hand, assured three Club tricks for Declarer. At most of these tables a Diamond was led to trick 2 and East, winning with the Ace returned his partner's Club suit. South won with the Ace and led a second Diamond. East held up his King until the third round and then led Club; but South, winning, put dummy in with the Ace of Spades and at all those tables Declarer won one Spade, two Hearts, three Diamonds and three Clubs.

Even with the unfortunate Club opening, East could have saved game by leading the King of Spades when he won the first Diamond. Of course it would entail the sacrifice of a King which otherwise would be sure to make, but it would shut out the long Diamonds in dummy and as it turns out, would save game. It is the type of lead that a careful player is always prepared to make.

We Women

HELPING THE BOY FRIEND

C. G. R.: If the boy has shown in every other way that he is more than anxious to live down his past, you can do no harm in forgiving his one slip. True his fall from grace is an admission of weakness, but if you truly love him, you can help that weakness.

Of course if he continues to err and be forgiven, you'll know in due time that your future husband is too much of a weakling to take a chance on. But as yet, there have been no signs that he hasn't the strength to strengthen up and make a man of himself.

Figure it out for yourself. You two had your first quarrel. And childishly enough, your man took the opportunity to hurt you in the worst way possible. But I don't believe that this will happen again. He sounds too much in earnest and so thoroughly ashamed of himself right now.

CONFESS THE FAULT: Better tell the truth if you want to stop worrying. You won't forgive yourself and you won't forget the incident for years to come if you don't make a clean breast of the whole thing.

MACKMEN TAKE DOUBLE HEADER FROM DETROIT

Veteran Waite Hoyt And McDonald Too Good for Tigers

By COPELAND C. BURG
INS Sports Writer

NEW YORK (INS)—They say Mussolini is a great man and we also have Gandhi, Ford, Edison and Charlie Lindbergh, but surely these appeared as mere chaff today compared to Connie Mack, manager of the world's greatest ball team.

Mussolini makes good soldiers out of bad waiters and Gandhi can make salt out of water, but neither can Mack pitchers out of nothing.

And Waite Hoyt was nothing but a castoff and Hank McDonald was just a boy when Mack took them up. But it's possible before the season ends Hoyt will have staged one of baseball's rare comebacks and McDonald will prove the pitching discovery of the year.

Hoyt Wins Again
Hoyt held Detroit to seven hits, winning his third straight game since becoming a Mackman. He beat the Tigers 5 to 3. McDonald was better, scoring 11 to 0 shut-out with three separate safeties. The double win thrust the Athletics seven games in front in the American league. When Mack can win without using his ace hurlers, it begins to look as though he'll never be headed or even necked.

The Chicago Cubs, supposed to be utterly collapsed with reports that manager Hornsby was to be put on the auction block, proved everything was exaggerated by again flopping the New York Giants.

They came from behind, Kiki Cuyler reaching for the moon and getting a single to score a tally in the ninth, to decide it, 5 to 4. The Giants are now clinging to second place by the margin of half a game over the Cubs, with Brooklyn in a virtual tie with Chicago.

Robins Wallows Cards
Three St. Louis Cardinals were bad while William Watson Clark had one of his better days and the Robins won, 10 to 3. Lefty O'Doul, just returned from New Zealand, the down under land of slump, got four blasts.

Sam Byrd, the outfielder the Yankees don't know whether they want or not, cracked a single that won for the New Yorkers from Cleveland, 5 to 4.

An error by Friberg let in two runs and a 4 to 2 triumph for the Pirates over the Phillies. It was the third straight flop for Philadelphia. Ed Brandt, the Boston Braves' great mound find, tasted a 1 to 0 defeat as John Ogdan of the Cincy Reds mastered him. Although the Reds got five hits to Cincy's four, Culp's fly scored Heathcote who tripled.

Oliver doubled in the eleventh, scoring Reeves to make possible a 5 to 4 Boston beating over St. Louis. The Browns took the nightcap, 5 to 2. Scores by innings:

FAVORITES WIN MOST RACES AT EMPIRE TRACK

Turf Fans Are Daily Giving Bookmakers Bad Beatings

BY LES CONKLIN
INS Sports Writer

NEW YORK—There is no business depression these days at the Empire City race track, where thousands of feverish turf enthusiasts with huge bankrolls clutched in either hand, are daily giving the bookmakers the beating of their lives.

Racing has been unbelievably formful at the Hilltop course since the summer meeting opened last Saturday. Of the twenty-four races run in four days, no less than nineteen have been won by favorites.

Of the remaining five choices, four ran second and one out of the money. Only three winners were long shots.

Four Favorites Click
The orallists had their backs to the wall today with no relief in sight. Four favorites clicked yesterday and Cockrell, the winner of one of the remaining two races, was the choice in the betting until a flood of money on Glenn, backed by price on that Equine down to 5 to 2 a few minutes before post time.

Nineteen winners out of twenty-four starts in unprecedented. The average winning percentage of favorites is one out of three.

A flat $100 bet on the choice in each of the twenty-four races would show a profit of $2,260.00 for the four days. Multiply this figure by 3,000 or 4,000 and you have some idea of the shellacking taken by the bookies.

Favorites Come Through
The favorites in the first twenty-two races of the meeting ran no worse than second. A person placing a $100 place parly on the favorites throughout that stretch and letting it ride would have amassed the tidy sum of $1,000,290.40.

Going into the fifth race yesterday, the man with the $1,000.40 could have done any of three things, viz:

1. He could have continued the place parly on Cockrell, which opened the favorite and incidentally won the race. This would have increased the "kick" to $2,332,638.80, which bet on Song Hit, favorite and winner in the last race, would have swelled the total to $3,498,598.20, quite a sizeable sum for a place bet on Manchoncock, probable favorite in the first race at Empire this afternoon.

2. He could have bet the $1,000.40 on Glenn. Which closed the favorite in the fifth race but ran fourth.

3. He could have been real smart, bought a steam yacht and be on the high-seas, Bermuda-bound this bright morning.

ARGENTINE POLO TEAM IS WINNER

Third Match Will Be Necessary to Name Champion

LAKE FOREST, Ill.—(INS)—A third match will be necessary to decide the International Polo series between Old Alken, the eastern colts and the Argentine team, San Paulo de Argentina, since the South Americans won the second game yesterday 11 to 8.

Absence of Stewart Iglehart, Alken's defensive star, who is ill with influenza, hampered the young riders somewhat but with Major C. C. Smith of Ft. Sheridan as substitute the losers fought an uphill battle.

It was plainly the Argentine's day. They led at the half, 5 to 3 with Alfredo Harrington and Manuel Andraza hanging the willow ball in great style.

Stella Walsh Wins In 300-Meter Dash

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(INS)—Stella Walsh, fleet-footed Cleveland girl, added the 300-meter mark to her long list here yesterday when she outraced a formidable field of six starters. Miss Walsh finished in front of her nearest rival, Margaret Coles, Canadian champion, by fifteen yards. Time was 26.1 seconds.

Max Baer May Meet Spanish Ring Boxer

OAKLAND, Cal.—(INS)—Max Baer, Oakland heavyweight, today was considering an offer from Madison Square Garden to meet Mateo Osa, young Spanish heavy, in a 40-round main event in New York July 26.

Allen T. Ware will captain three Lehigh teams the next school year. He was elected in football, baseball and basketball.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

by John Hix

The story is told in Irving's "Knickerbocker's History of New York" of one Wilhelmus Kref, Dutch governor of New York, who thought that the people spent too much time talking politics. Kref believed smoking was the direct cause of it, and issued an edict prohibiting smoking entirely. Rebellious, the smokers, equipped with plenty of tobacco and long pipes, gathered before the governor's house, and literally smoked him out of his home. The rebels won, and their smoking rights were restored to them.

An angora cat, owned by Raymond Roush, of Marion, Ohio was once noted for her aptitude in exterminating rats. But she had a change of heart. One day Roush led the cat to a nice dinner, a new-born litter of rats, and left her to enjoy the meal. When he returned he found the cat feeding the rats instead of the rats feeding the cat.

ALL STARS TO PLAY TODAY IN IOWA NET MEET

One Powerful Player In Every Match on Program Today

By FRANK CRANE
INS Sports Writer

DES MOINES TENNIS CLUB—(INS)—The stars will play today—stars who have been able to survive the ordeal of three rounds of smashing play in the Iowa State tennis tournament here.

There are four matches in the men's singles class scheduled for today, and in each match is at least one powerful player. In each bracket a potential champion.

In the top bracket, Harris Coggeshall, of Des Moines, seeded No. 1, co-holder of the Missouri Valley doubles championship in 1930, a veteran among veterans, meets Charles Davis of Oklahoma City, headliner of the brilliant University of Oklahoma tennis squad, another genuine veteran.

Sasa Meiers Levers
Jerry Sasa of Oklahoma City, the lad who drives and smashes with either hand, who yesterday had the stamina and cunning twice to break through the powerful service of Bob McFarland of Oklahoma City, meets Dick Levers of Kansas City.

Frank Brody of Des Moines, star of Drake university, fleet, lanky threat who really covers all of the court, clashes with Lowell Runkel of Oklahoma City, who has already proven an upset in the tournament and is all set to add to his fame.

Merle Robins of Ames, who last year snatched the state crown from before the eyes of Brody, who thus far this year has brilliantly defended that crown, trades drives with Bennie Beckerman of Des Moines, lithe, dashing darling of the A. 2, who has garnered a neat bag of tricks from many years of stiff competition on midwest courts.

Good Doubles Competition
Doubles competition in the men's class also offers promise of brilliant play today, as the semi-finals in that class are played.

George Fredrickson and Albert Hays of Oklahoma City meet Harris Coggeshall of Des Moines and George Struble of Toledo. Lowell Runkel and Charles Davis of Oklahoma City meet Dick Rugg and Joe Weissman of Waterloo.

Three matches are scheduled today in the junior singles. Art Johnson of Des Moines plays Dick Levers of Kansas City, Kenneth Kline of Washington plays William Wheatley of Des Moines, and Dick Rugg of Waterloo plays John Fletcher of Des Moines.

HELEN MADISON AGAIN WINNER

Seattle Mermaid to Go After Third Title Tonight

NEW YORK.—(INS)—Having mopped up the best opposition the country affords in two events on the opening day of the annual women's outdoor swimming championship in the Bronx Beach pool last night, Miss Helen Madison, peerless seventeen-year-old swimmer of Seattle, Wash., will go after a third national championship tonight.

She will engage a field of eleven in the quarter-mile swim, one of three championship events on the day's program and one of numerous events in which she is defending a championship in the current meet.

The ascendancy of the Misses Coleman and Holm in their specialties will serve to keep the meet from becoming a monotonous succession of triumphs for Miss Madison.

TWO SWIMMING RECORDS FALL

Relay Mark Broken, 300-Meter Champ Beats Own Time

HONOLULU, T. H.—(INS)—Two new world's swimming records had been established today in the national A. A. U. championships here.

Swimming in the 300-meter relay, Clarence Buster Crabbe of the Los Angeles athletic club, defending champion, broke his own record established last year by one second to win by 10 meters in 4 minutes 5 4-5 seconds.

The second mark was hung up by the Hollywood Athletic club relay team in the 880-yard relay when the team clocked 5 1-5 seconds from the old mark established last year, to finish in 9:21 4-5.

LONGWOOD NET PLAY FEATURED BY FAST GAME

Helen Wills Moody Enters Competition Again Today

By DAVID F. KILEY
INS Staff Correspondent

LONGWOOD CRICKET CLUB, Brookline, Mass.—A blaze of brilliant tennis swept across the Longwood courts today, featuring the semi-finals in the Golden Jubilee of the Longwood Bowl tournament, and the second day of competitive play by the "queen of the courts," Mrs. Helen Wills Moody.

John Hope Dool, of Newark, N. J., national tennis champion, seeded first among the three other top seeded players who survived the preliminary rounds of the Longwood Bowl tournament, meets Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, 1930 bowl winner, in the semi-final of the singles.

Wilder Allison, of Austin, Texas, battles Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, Cal., in the other half of semi-final play. Allison is a Davis cup player and Vines is National clay courts champion.

Mrs. Moody, once again teamed with Mrs. George W. Wightman of Boston, meets Mrs. Robert Norris, Mrs. Mary Lamme, in the quarter finals of the women's invitation doubles tournament.

Following the match, Mrs. Moody plays a one-set exhibition match with G. Holmes Perkins, state champion.

Twenty Grand Is Favorite to Win Arlington Race

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago.—(INS)—If Twenty Grand really feels Saturday like he looks daily in his workouts for the Arlington classic he will go down in the records as the greatest horse since Man of War. That is the opinion of the rail birds.

Other contenders, principally Mate also took their last hard gallops yesterday.

Eight three-year-olds seem to be sure starters for the richest stake of the year and if all eight start the race will be worth $87,200 in all with the winner taking $14,650. The eight include: Twenty Grand, Mate, St. Bridewell, Spanish Fly, Jobb Bib, Sam Meador, Sir Ashgley and Epitaph.

Star-Flite Tennis Stars to Entertain Cedar Rapids Team

Muscatine's star-flite tennis association net team, consisting of the ranking stars, Cy Peck, Bernard Harper, Francis Weiss, F. McFarland, John Baird and Ray Ohmmer will meet the Cedar Rapids Outing club net team on the new association courts on Mulberry avenue Sunday afternoon. It was announced today by Bernard Harper.

NEW CHAMPION WINS CROWN IN SEVENTH ROUND

130-Pound Title Is Recognized in New York State

PHILADELPHIA.—(INS)—Kid Chocolate, ebony fighter from Cuba, is today junior lightweight champion of the world.

By virtue of a seven-round technical knockout victory over Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, here last night, the Cuban Bon Bon won the 130-pound title, which is recognized in New York State.

The Kid came close to winning the crown by a clean knockout in the second round when he got in a hard right to the jaw which staggered Bass. Benny managed to snap out of it and finished the round on his feet.

That last session was the "Kee's" big round. It took everything out of the dethroned champion and the rest was easy for Chocolate.

Bass did put on a great comeback in the early stages of the third and fourth sessions but was much too wild in his swings. In the fifth Benny's left eye started to bleed.

From the fifth round Chocolate apparently knew he had Bass on the run, and rammed his left jab into Benny's face with ease.

Bass entered the ring weighing 128½ pounds, while the new champion was three pounds lighter.

John Lehman Enters Quarter-Finals in Western Golf Play

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—Johnny Lehman, Chicago, defending champion, was in the quarter-finals of the western amateur golf championship today, having won his first two rounds easily.

He eliminated Lloyd Byerly, Portland, 6 and 5 in the morning and Chuck Hunter, Tacoma, Wash., 4 and 2 in the afternoon 13 holes, playing under par most of the time.

With the only middle westerner in the tournament were Fay Coleman, Los Angeles; Harold Thompson, Glendale, Cal.; Dr. C. F. Willing, Done Moe, Rudie Wilhelm, and Malcolm MacNaughton, all of Portland, and Jack Gaines, Glendale, Cal.

SYNOPSIS

BETH SHANNON, having lost her job as stenographer, goes out to look for a new one. She is entirely self-dependent and is also the support of her widowed invalid mother. On the eve of her job-hunt a strange thing happens, a deceased sister of

MRS. SHANNON, with whom the latter had quarreled, sends Beth a trunk of beautiful clothes, too fine for her to wear as she now is situated, and a letter marked, "To be opened one year from today." The only friend the Shannons have is

GEORGE METCALF, a stingy, mean-minded young man, proprietor of a nearby dry-cleaning establishment, but redeemed by his courtesy to Beth's mother his liking for herself. In hugging a job Beth catches a glimpse of

PHILIP DANE, who has advertised for a secretary, and falls instantly in love with him. She gets the coveted place, rejoicing in it even though she knows that between herself and Philip stretches a wide barrier—he is rich, well-connected, prominent socially, everything that she is not. The trunk has been sent at Mrs. Shannon's request to FRANCES and NED HAVENS, friends of Beth's who live far out in the Bronx. The letter Beth has secreted in a small cupboard under the kitchen range.

CHAPTER V

"You Can't Throw Me Over!" GEORGE METCALF was worried. Life was out of joint and he couldn't exactly tell why, couldn't put his finger on the place where things had gone wrong for him. He was worried most about Beth and couldn't quite account for his worry. She was just as friendly as ever. She had never been very enthusiastic about him at best, but there was some kind of a reserve in her manner toward him, hard to define, but there unmistakably. She was prettier, too. She had always been pretty, but now she was radiant as though some soft light shone over her bright hair, deepened the violet of her eyes and heightened the color in her cheeks.

He had never tried to make love to her very much. For one thing, he was wary of matrimony when it involved, as it would with Beth, the care of her mother, too. But he had kissed her occasionally and had always felt free to take her hand, or rest his arm across her slender shoulders. She had never liked this particularly, but her resistance had been that of indifference rather than active distaste. Now she wouldn't let him touch her, flared up at him angrily if he attempted so much as holding her hand longer than necessary when he shook hands to say good night.

George's mind worked slowly. For two weeks he had been feeling this way, asking Beth seemingly casual questions and learning nothing. For Beth, with the wisdom of the serpent, was determined to hide from him every one of her consuming passions for Philip Dane. She realized more clearly than ever, after two weeks of working for him, how little she mattered to him as a girl. He was pleasant, even cordial to her, and he liked to talk about his work with her. But their contact began with the time he came to her home in the afternoon, and he left in the afternoon. Beth, however, continued to worship him, to build her dreams around him, and to regard the world in general in a new and rosy light. She was so cheerful at home that her manner infected Mrs. Shannon and roused her to more activity than she had shown for a long time. She had some crocheting work to do now, it paid her very little, but it kept her occupied and she was proud of what she finished.

Beth might have gone on for a long time very successfully if it had not been for George. With her new feeling for Philip the simply could not bear the idea of George's touching her, and she showed it more plainly than she half hoped it would drive him away completely.

"Taken for granted?" But George had, as Beth well knew, a steady, persistent stubbornness, and he did not mean to let Beth escape. On the second Saturday night of Beth's new position he came up to the Shannons' prepared to take supper with them, as he was accustomed to doing. Beth, wearing an apron over her office dress, opened the door to him.

"You're too late for supper," she told him, "unless you want to eat scraps. I came home early and mother and I had supper at 5."

George was hungry and said so. "Bread and butter and tea, then, and I guess there's a little brown Betty left over. I'm just going out to do my Sunday marketing and the pantry's bare of even an egg."

"My goodness, Beth," he said irritably, "I always come for supper Saturday night and take you to the movies afterward. I don't know why you should forget it this way."

"I didn't forget it," said Beth calmly, "but I told you not long ago that I hated being taken for granted."

"Well, I'll go down to the corner and get something. Will you be ready to go to the movies by the time I get back?"

"No, I don't think I'll go tonight, George. I want to do my marketing. And tomorrow I'm going to spend the day with Frances, so I want to get everything ready for mother tonight. I'm going right after church in the morning."

George shifted from one foot to the other. "Well, I think you might have let me know," he complained. "There's a good show on at the 22nd Street Theatre. Let's go, Beth."

She shook her head. "Not tonight. If I'm going to leave mother alone all day tomorrow I ought to stay in this evening."

She took off the apron as she spoke and hung it on the hook behind the door. "I'll walk up to the corner with you," she offered, "that's right on my way."

George was scared. Beth had never been so independent before, not even when she was angry with him. All the way to the corner he listened moodily to Beth's chatter and exchanged a very brief good-bye with her when they parted. Beth went on to her shopping, well pleased with herself. She had snubbed George so soundly that he'd hardly venture to impose on her in the same way again. Maybe, when her mother was a little stronger, she could persuade Mrs. Shannon to move out of this terrible neighborhood. They had come there originally because of the nearby clinic. But Dr. Grey had assured them that they would find other clinics just as good in better sections of the city, and Beth had already begun to discuss the matter with her mother. She finished her shopping happily, allowing herself to pretend that she was ordering very grand things for a dinner for herself and Philip, buying in her imagination capon and artichokes instead of the pot roast and carrots that she actually acquired. Beth had a very vague idea about what to do with artichokes, but there were cookbooks and certain they were a very choice article of food.

"I Want to Talk With You!" Back home she arranged her mother's chair near the kitchen radiator. The heat had been turned on that day and Beth drew a sign of relief because their gas bills would not be so high for the rest of the winter. Then she dragged a rocker near and opened her own book. It seemed quite quiet and happy to be sitting here like this, raising her hand from time to time to touch the lucky bangle as she turned the pages of her book.

A rap on the door, a well-known rap, and George's head stuck in as always before he came into the room. He didn't know when he was snubbed, apparently.

"Busy?" he asked rather sheepishly, as he closed the door behind him.

"Oh, not particularly," Beth answered, "I thought you were going on to the movies."

"Don't care much about them alone," he said, laying aside his coat. "How're you feeling, Mrs. Shannon?"

"Ever so much better," Mrs. Shannon answered promptly. "In fact, when night comes now I'm sleepy enough to go to bed without my medicine. If you want to talk to Beth, I think I'll go in now and go to sleep. I was just sitting here to keep her company, really."

This suited George's plans excellently and he sprang to assist Beth's mother from her chair. It seemed to him she leaned less heavily on his arm than formerly and he wondered if perhaps some day she might not be entirely well again. Beth hovered around until her mother was tucked away, then she came back to the kitchen with George and resumed her chair.

George looked at her so long that she began to feel uncomfortable. "Smudge on my nose?" she asked at last, filipantly.

"No, there's nothing wrong with your nose. I want to talk to you, Beth; will you listen to me?"

"I can't help myself," cried Beth resentfully. "Don't take that tone, George. I've been thinking things over seriously, and I have decided that it would be foolish to wait any longer."

"Will you marry me, Beth?"

"Marry you?"

"Don't act as though it were a new idea to you, Beth. I haven't looked at any other girl for more than two years now, and you know it. I'll be honest with you, I kept waiting until we could see how your mother was going to get along, but I guess there won't be much change in her condition, better today, worse tomorrow. And I don't think we ought to waste all these years."

In Love With Love

"I have never thought seriously of marrying you at any time, George," Beth said. "I've appreciated what you've done for mother and the places you've taken me, and sometimes I've liked you quite well. But I've never had any idea at all of marrying you."

"That isn't so, Beth," he insisted. "Don't you remember the time when I first knew you when we talked about getting married and what kind of house we'd like to have?"

Beth searched her memory. Yes, one time, when she first knew him, they had gone for a walk one Sunday afternoon, an afternoon in spring when the air and the sunshine and the happy people about them had induced a love-making mood. She winced at the recollection. It seemed silly to her at this distance.

"I do remember now," she said cruelly, "but I think that was mostly it's being springtime, and your being the first man who ever took me out. I was awfully young then—in love with love. And I didn't know you nearly so well as I do now."

"The more I know you, the better I like you, Beth."

Beth was silent.

"I thought this," he went on after a pause. "It's coming on winter and this place where you're living isn't very comfortable. Neither is my room. We could both go on working. I have my business anywhere, and get a larger place with more modern equipment. I've got trying to make me marry him and I don't want to," she sobbed.

"Move stuff!"

Mrs. Shannon looked at George. "You didn't hurt her, did you?" she asked anxiously.

"I wouldn't hurt her for anything," he said indignantly. "But you know I've always expected to marry Beth some day and I thought we'd waited long enough. And now, when she's known that for years, she begins to cry and act like a baby because I want it to be soon."

"Come here, Beth," Mrs. Shannon's voice was stronger, and Beth obeyed like a little girl again. "Why don't you want to marry George? He's been kind to both of us, the only faithful friend we've had. He has a good business, he would take care of you. It's not like you to cry and carry on like this just because a man you've never known for years does you the honor of wanting you to be his wife."

"I—I just can't marry him," Beth faltered.

"Why not?"

"I—I don't love him."

Mrs. Shannon sighed. "Love isn't everything," she said.

"It is for me," Beth raising her head and looking at both of them. "When I get married it will be to some man I love so much I can't help marrying him. Some one I'd die for, or live in poverty with, share everything that came to him. I don't want any safe, tame, kind of marriage. I want something with some adventure in it."

George picked up his hat. "Movie stuff," he said. "Then he looked at Beth. "Just the same you can't throw me over like this and you can't keep pulling the wool over my eyes. I'm going to find out what's happened to you, and I consider that you're engaged to me, so there!"

He went out, banging the door after him, and Beth was left alone with her mother.

"I don't have to marry him, do I, mother?" she asked pleadingly.

"No, not if you really don't want to. But you do owe him the courtesy of thinking seriously about it, and you mustn't throw away a good chance like that without thinking. You know the story of the man that went all through the forest looking for a straight stick and came out with a crooked one."

Bound With Chains

"I'd rather never get married at all than marry George," Beth cried passionately.

Mrs. Shannon looked at her speculatively, opened her door to ask a question, then closed it again. Whatever it was—and Mrs. Shannon was inclined to credit George's assumption that something had happened to Beth—whatever it was, Beth wasn't ready for confidence now.

"Help me back to bed, Beth," she said gently.

Instantly Beth was all contrition. "Oh, mother, I'm sorry. I was so excited that for a minute I forgot you were sick." Very tenderly she helped her mother back to bed and made her comfortable for the night.

"Let's not talk about George again," she begged.

"Not unless you want to," Mrs. Shannon agreed.

Beth felt a surge of relief. "I really don't want to be married," she added, "never."

But long after her mother's breathing told that she was sleeping soundly, Beth lay awake, more surely love's prisoner than if she had been bound with chains and lying at Philip Dane's feet. Love's hopeless prisoner, Beth's common sense might have added—but Beth no longer pretended to any reason whatever in her dreaming of the man she worked for.

NEW YORK.—(INS)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round-the-world fliers, arrived here in their record-breaking plane Winnie Mae from Indianapolis at 11 a. m. today. They landed at Floyd Bennett airport an hour earlier than expected.

Both national and state elections cause considerable work for the chief executive of this state. In national elections he must certify election returns and issue the certificates of election to the presidential electors. He then calls a meeting of the electors at the state capital where they vote on the presidential candidates.

A certificate of their ballot must then be made out by the state governor and sent to congress and to the United States.

Before each general election the governor is required by law to issue a proclamation announcing the coming election. It is his duty at the time the proclamation is issued to announce the names of all candidates who have qualified for election.

In the event of a special election the governor is required to prepare and issue a proclamation at least ten days prior to the date set for the election. Special elections may be called for state projects or in the event of a vacancy in any state or national legislative office of the state. Of course, however, these cases only occur when the vacancy occurs when the legislative bodies are in session or when the legislature will convene before there is another regular general election.

Duties of Governor

Following an election it is the duty of the governor to send each successful candidate a certificate of election.

IOWA GOVERNOR HAS CHARGE OF ALL ELECTIONS

When Oath Is Taken Executive Takes on Many Duties

By CURTIS HAY, JR.

DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—When a governor of Iowa takes the oath of office in January of the odd numbered years he assumes beside his duties of appointing officials, beside his work in connection with the judicial department, and beside his post as commander-in-chief of the military forces of the state, a tremendous power and duty of executive business.

He is in charge of the state's executive department for two years and must supervise elections in the state. He becomes a member of six boards, commissions and councils. He becomes the supervisor of all other executive departments and keeps in constant touch with the business conducted in other branches of the government.

The duties of the executive business are the most important part of the governor's service to Iowa and consume the majority of his working hours.

MAID-RITE BUILDS HANDSOME NEW HOME

The Maid-Rite Sandwich management announces the opening of their beautiful new structure on Cedar street, between Front and Second street, Saturday, July 18th, on the site of the old Maid-Rite building which has served thousands of people in Muscatine and surrounding territory for the past five years.

There is no comparison between the old and the new building. The new shop is "high, handsome and wide," as the saying goes. It will house twice as many people and possesses features such as will be found only in the higher priced places.

More chairs have been provided, more counter room, together with tables sufficient to take care of a hundred or more patrons at one time.

Saturday's opening is expected to exceed the crowds that recently attended the fifth anniversary celebration of the Maid-Rite in Muscatine, when more than five thousand people visited the shop and partook of the many treats offered.

Everybody who comes Saturday will not only enjoy the visit but will be treated to a snappy cold or hot drink with every sandwich purchased.

There is also another treat in store for the visitors. A band concert will be given in the evening and this feature alone is expected to draw several hundred people. More than a thousand Maid-Rite Sandwich Shops are now in operation in various parts of the country. The growth of the Maid-Rite process is not an experiment. The new shops opening up as far away as California prove the Sandwich is meeting a wide and popular demand.

In practically every mail Mr. Angel, the owner, states he receives inquiries from different parts of the country relative to the establishment of a Maid-Rite shop, these inquiries coming from as far away as California, where he has sold rights for the use of the Maid-Rite process and facilities.

The president told him he would take it under "serious advisement."

COURT APPROVES STOCK YARD PLAN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Final disposition of the stock yards interest of Armour and Co., Chicago meat packers, was approved by district of Columbia supreme court, Justice Jennings Dalley Tuesday.

Attorney for Armour said the company's interest in the General Stock Yards corp., which holds interest in several stock yards, and in the Jersey City stock yards, have been sold to the Armforth Corp., incorporated under the laws of Delaware.

Disposition of the stock yards interest of the packing company was made under the decree entered several months ago by Justice Bailey amending the anti-trust consent decree to permit the packers to engage in wholesale food business.

Hoover Invited by Copeland to Begin Campaign in N. Y.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Hoover had the experience Tuesday of having a democrat, Senator Copeland, New York, suggest to him where he should make the keynote address in his campaign for re-election next year.

The senator invited him to make his "keynote address"—Copeland's words—at the dinner marking the opening of the new Waldorf Astoria hotel in New York Sept. 30.

The president told him he would take it under "serious advisement."

COURT APPROVES STOCK YARD PLAN

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Final disposition of the stock yards interest of Armour and Co., Chicago meat packers, was approved by district of Columbia supreme court, Justice Jennings Dalley Tuesday.

Attorney for Armour said the company's interest in the General Stock Yards corp., which holds interest in several stock yards, and in the Jersey City stock yards, have been sold to the Armforth Corp., incorporated under the laws of Delaware.

Disposition of the stock yards interest of the packing company was made under the decree entered several months ago by Justice Bailey amending the anti-trust consent decree to permit the packers to engage in wholesale food business.
